

The StoryMaker

Would you like to hear
the greatest story of all time?
Well then, let's start at the beginning with the One who made it: God.

Everything that is all around us
was created by God.

He released the clouds from his hand and hung the stars in the sky. He dressed the trees with leaves and taught brooks to babble.

God even made the first people and breathed on them to wake them up to life.

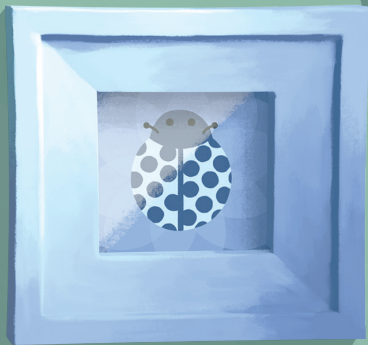

Their names were Adam and Eve.
They loved each other
and the world around them,
and most of all, they loved God.

Everything was perfect.

A stylized illustration in shades of blue and black. A hand is shown from the right, holding a stack of papers. The background features dark, rounded shapes representing clouds and a jagged white lightning bolt on the left. The overall mood is somber and reflective.

But things aren't perfect
and wonderful today.
All of us have moments of sickness, fear, and sadness.
What happened?
